

Vydehi Institute of Nursing Sciences and Research Centre

Research

Research department provides in-depth coverage and search of all aspects of knowledge including nursing research, ethics, human rights, risk benefit ratios and privacy. As well it provides step by step guidance to understand and implement successful qualitative methods in research. B.sc nursing IV yr students will be doing group project and M.sc Nursing students will be doing individual project. These students will be guided by research experts.

Recent research activities

- Effectiveness of hand-arm exercise on maturation of arteriovenous fistula among patients undergoing haemodialysis in a selected hospital, Bangalore.
- Effectiveness of buerger allen exercise among staff nurses with restless leg syndrome in a selected hospital, Bangalore
- Effectiveness of multifaceted intervention on knowledge and practice regarding breast health among women residing in selected rural community, Bangalore.
- Study on lived experience of parents with differently abled children in a selected special school, Bangalore.

Ongoing research activities

- A comparative study to assess the effectiveness of glycerin sulphate, heparin gel, and moist heat treatment on extravasations and infiltration caused by IV cannulization among patients in a selected hospital at Bangalore
- Effectiveness of Information, Education and Communication (IEC) on knowledge and attitude regarding premarital HIV testing and genotype testing among adolescents in selected schools, Bangalore.
- Effectiveness of birth ball exercise upon labour pain during latent phase of labour among parturient mother in selected hospital, Bangalore.
- Effectiveness of multifarious instruction on knowledge and attitude regarding importance of placental stem cell banking among antenatal women attending antenatal OPD in selected hospital, Bangalore.
- Effectiveness of Video Assisted Teaching (VAT) on knowledge regarding care of children during convulsions among care givers of children at selected special school, Bangalore